Course overview

This course offers a comprehensive exploration of practical drawing and painting techniques with a specific focus on still life compositions. Through a series of hands-on exercises and projects, students will develop their artistic skills and gain a deeper understanding of the principles and elements of art. In a supportive and collaborative environment, participants will learn to observe and capture the essence of still life objects using various drawing and painting mediums. Through a combination of demonstrations, discussions, and individualized feedback, students will refine their abilities to render form, texture, and light with accuracy and sensitivity.

Course description

The last exploring course of this academic year will cover a range of topics, including composition, perspective, colour theory, and brushwork techniques. Learners will be encouraged to experiment with different approaches and styles, allowing them to find their unique artistic voice. Additionally, art historical references and contemporary examples will be incorporated to inspire and inform learners' creative processes.

By the end of the course, participants will have developed a solid foundation in practical drawing and painting skills, specifically in the context of still life. They will have gained confidence in their ability to observe and translate their observations into compelling artworks. By using charcoal, watercolour, pencil, acrylic and collage there will be no technique left unturned. This course is suitable for improvers artists looking to refine their skills and expand their artistic horizons.

This course will prepare you for the following academic years courses and open the opportunity for other learning within the WEA.

Join us for an enriching and rewarding artistic journey as we delve into the world of still life drawing and painting. Whether you are a hobbyist or aspiring professional, this course will equip you with the tools and knowledge to create captivating still life compositions with confidence and skill.
