Course overview

Develop your English skills for working in care homes with our ESOL Employability: Care Homes course. Focus on practical communication needed for the care sector. Ideal for non-native speakers seeking employment in care homes.

Course description

ESOL Employability: Care Homes is designed to help non-native English speakers improve their language skills for working in the care home sector. This course covers essential vocabulary and phrases used in care settings, ensuring that participants can communicate effectively with residents, colleagues, and healthcare professionals. Participants will learn practical communication skills for everyday tasks such as administering medication, assisting with personal care, and recording patient information. The course includes interactive activities, role-plays, and real-life scenarios to build confidence and fluency in English. Emphasis is placed on understanding and adhering to care home regulations and standards. By the end of the course, participants will have a solid foundation in English language skills and be well-prepared to seek employment in care homes. This course is ideal for non-native speakers looking to enhance their employability in the care sector.
