Course overview

Vulnerable people are at higher risk of neglect and abuse. Training in safeguarding teaches you how to spot signs that someone may be at harm. It also helps you know what steps to take in case of reported or suspected abuse. This short safeguarding course gives you a view into safeguarding practices and the importance of protecting adults' rights to live in safety.

Course description

If you do volunteer work, or have contact with vulnerable adults, this safeguarding course can help you understand how to protect their right to live in safety.

If you would like to gain a deeper awareness of why safeguarding is important, you can study for an accredited Safeguarding qualification.

Look at what is meant by the terms 'safeguarding' and 'adults at risk'. Learn how to recognise the different forms abuse may take. Examine the key laws and principles guiding the safeguarding process. Look at real-life scenarios to see safeguarding principles in practice. By the end of this training in safeguarding, you'll have a clear understanding of your safeguarding responsibilities as a volunteer.

For any job role where you have direct contact with vulnerable people, it's a legal requirement to have a verified safeguarding qualification. If you're considering job roles with safeguarding responsibilities, this course can help you understand if they're right for you.

To study this online safeguarding course you'll need an internet connection. This is so you can access our digital learning platform, Canvas.
