Course overview

Take a Picture , this time with a broad 'Summer Theme' - Tell Its Story, a fun, friendly and structured approach to aid you in finding inspiration, putting pen paper and get writing. Every picture tells a story, so we put the focus on getting creative and being inspired by a variety of pictures (ideally taken by yourself with a different theme to prompt us each session). We apply some key hints, tricks and craft to our writing which could be inspired by memory found in fact, fiction or somewhere in between - developing ideas throughout each session.

Course description

A picture can say a thousand words - a fun, friendly and structured approach to aid you in finding inspiration, putting pen paper and get writing. Every picture tells a story, so we put the focus on getting creative as inspired by a variety of pictures (ideally taken by yourself with a different theme to prompt us each session). We apply some key hints, tricks and craft to our writing which could be fact, fiction or somewhere in between - we use our own creativity by putting pen to paper. What happens when we look really closely at a picture, say, a crowd of people, might their own stories to be found in the background? Might a picture evoke a particular mood or emotion- where might these words lead us? Does a picture evoke a certain memory or period in time/history? And what of those pictures where things don't appear quite as they are? Each session taking inspiration from your own and or the images taken by others – all to a specific theme or phrase, there will be a varied mix of group discussion and tasks with plenty of time for individual writing – hopefully taking advantage of a 'summer' theme?
