Course overview

This course explores some of the inspiration, insights and influences that lie behind the work of a range of artists, chosen for their contrasting approaches to landscape painting. We look at the work of Camille Corot, Paul Cezanne, Gustav Klimt and Eric Ravilious, and of French Impressionism, Fauvism and the California Society of Six, to discover how they were inspired to translate their powerful and often passionate response to landscapes onto canvas.

Course description

We also explore the role of social, cultural and political influences on these artists' approaches to landscape painting.

The characteristics of these works including colour, form, and composition are discussed in detail.
